$500,000 Russian Icon C

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

One of the most historic and magnificent of all the world's icons—the Russian "Our Lady of Kazan"—will be enshrined in a Chapel at the 1964-65 New York World's Fair.

This was disclosed yesterday by John I. Hennessey, consultant to The Most Rev. John Shalovskoy, Archbishop of San Francisco and the Western United States of the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic Church of America.

Mr. Hennessey recently completed a three-month tour of the United States and southern Canada with the Holy Icon which was seen at church services by persons of many faiths.

The trip was made to raise funds for the purchase of the privately-owned icon and restore it to the Church so that it will not fall into the hands of the Communists.

Once Enshrined In Kremlin

The icon, which was protected by armed guards on the 18,581-mile trip, is estimated to be worth at least $500,000. It is basically a painting on wood, weighing 10 pounds and dazzling with
